Over the years, Fleming Architects has designed and/or remodeled many components of the 50 acre CBHS campus, which is located in the heart of East Memphis. One of the first major projects that Fleming designed was Tom Nix Stadium, named for the legendary football coach and athletic director, Tom Nix. The stadium has been home to Christian Brothers High School football since 1996, and those driving by the campus on Friday nights can see the 4,000 seat stadium alive with the excitement of CBHS's football tradition. Additionally, Fleming has designed the baseball stadium, an indoor practice facility, new locker room spaces, training rooms, and a gymnasium, among others. Fleming is currently designing a new Athletic Development Center, complete with locker rooms, weight room, fitness center, gymnasium, and coaches' offices. Other projects that Fleming Architects has designed for CBHS include numerous indoor additions and renovations, classrooms, the library, cafeteria, band room, administrative and development offices and Science and Engineering spaces.

“ Without question, Scott has been wonderful to work with. Architecturally, all the additions are designed to blend in with the style of the original buildings ... so much so that it's hard to distinguish between the new and the older facilities... Most importantly, I have always found Scott to be professional, fair and easy to deal with. He responds to every phone call and email, always keeps his cool, and definitely has the best interests of his clients in mind when decisions are made. ”
